GENEALOGICAL WORD LIST

FAMILY HISTORY LIBRARYTM SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

Afrikaans

This list contains Afrikaans words with their English translations. The words included here are those that you are likely to find in genealogical sources. If the word you are looking for is not on this list, please consult a Afrikaans-English dictionary. (See the "Additional Resources" section below.)

Afrikaans is a Germanic language derived from several European languages, primarily Dutch. Many of the words resemble Dutch, Flemish, and German words. Consequently, the German Genealogical Word List (34067) and Dutch Genealogical Word List (31030) may also be useful to you. Some Afrikaans records contain Latin words. See the Latin Genealogical Word List (34077).

Afrikaans is spoken in South Africa and Namibia and by many families who live in other countries in eastern and southern Africa, especially in Zimbabwe. Most early South African records are written in Dutch, while a smaller number are written in French and German. After 1795 many were written in English. Afrikaans did not become an official language until 1925.

Afrikaans and English are now the official languages of South Africa. Seventeen official African languages are also spoken.

LANGUAGE CHARACTERISTICS

Variant Forms of Words

In Afrikaans, as in English, the forms of some words will vary according to how they are used in a sentence. Who—whose—whom and marry marries—married are examples of words in English with variant forms. This word list gives the standard form of each Afrikaans word. As you read Afrikaans records, you will need to be aware that some words vary with usage.

The endings of words in a document also may differ from what you find in this list. For example, the suffix -es is added to words to indicate a feminine form of the word.

In Afrikaans, which incorporates many elements of Dutch and German, some words are formed by joining two or more words together. Very few of these compound words are included in this list. You will need to look up each part of the word separately. For example, Geboortedag is a combination of two words, Geboorte (birth) and Dag (day).

Alphabetical Order

Written Afrikaans uses a basic English alphabet order. Most Afrikaans dictionaries and indexes as well as the Family History Library Catalog[™] use the following alphabetical order:

*The letter c was used in place-names and personal names but not in general Afrikaans words until 1985.

The letters \hat{e} , \ddot{e} , and \hat{o} are also used in some Afrikaans words.

If an 'n appears with a word, it indicates the English article a or an. For example, rak, 'n means a rack. Rok, 'n means a dress.

This word list is alphabetized according to English alphabetical order.

In Afrikaans indexes of surnames or of places, it is important to note that prefixes such as van der, de, or ter, and so forth are considered in alphabetization. For example, De Wetsdorp would come before van de Merwe or v/d Merwe.

Spelling

Spelling rules were not standardized in earlier centuries. Words were written as they sounded. The following letters could be interchanged:

b used for p	s used for z
d used for t	t used for d or dt
i used for j	v used for w or f
p used for b	y used for i or j

Additional Resources

This word list includes only the words most commonly found in genealogical sources. For further help, use a Afrikaans-English dictionary. At the Family History Library[™], you can find these dictionaries in the AFR./MIDEAST collection. The call numbers begin with 439.36321.

You can also find them by looking in the Family History Library Catalog. In the Subject Search, look under AFRIKAANS LANGUAGE -DICTIONARIES. In the Locality Search, look under SOUTH AFRICA - LANGUAGE AND LANGUAGES.

KEY WORDS

To find and use specific types of Afrikaans records, you will need to know some key words in Afrikaans. This section gives key genealogical terms in English and the Afrikaans words with the same or similar meanings.

For example, in the first column you will find the English word marriage. In the second column you will find Afrikaans words with meanings such as marry, marriage, wedding, wedlock, unite, legitimate, joined, and other words used in Afrikaans records to indicate marriage.

GENERAL WORD LIST

This general word list includes words commonly seen in genealogical sources. Numbers, months, and days of the week are listed both here and in separate sections that follow this list.

In this list, optional versions of Afrikaans words or variable endings (such as some plural or feminine endings), are given in parentheses. Parentheses in the English column clarify the definition.

In Afrikaans some words have both a male and female form, such as:

Diaken (male deacon) Diakenes (female deacon) Onderwyser (male teacher) Onderwyseres (female teacher)

When a word has both a male and female version, this word list gives the masculine form of the word. The feminine form of the word will end with an es.

NUMBERS

In some genealogical records, numbers are spelled out. This is especially true with dates. The following list gives the cardinal (for example, 1, 2, 3) and the ordinal (for example, 1st, 2nd, 3rd) versions of each number. Days of the month are written in ordinal form.

	Cardinal		Ordinal
1	een	1st	eerste
2	twee	2nd	tweede
3	drie	3rd	derde
4	vier	4th	vierde

- Dutch. Donderdag, drie en twintig maart in het jaar van onse heer een duizend acht hondert en zesendertig (Thursday, three and twenty March, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred six and thirty)
- German. Donnerstag, den drei und zwanzigsten märz achtzehnhundert sechs und dreißig

(Thursday, the 23rd of March, eighteen hundred six and thirty)

To understand Afrikaans dates, use the following lists as well as the preceding "Numbers" section.

South Africa

Introduction

In identifying ancestors, genealogical researchers need to answer four key questions regarding record sources:

- 1. What types of records exist that will aid in identifying ancestors?
- 2. What periods of time do the existing records cover?
- 3. What genealogical information appears in the existing records?
- 4. What is the availability of existing records for searching?

Tables A and B contain answers to the above questions for the major genealogical record sources of South Africa. Table A shows at a glance the record sources available for a research problem in a particular century. Table B provides more detailed information about the type of record, the period covered, the type of information given, and the availability.

This paper also contains the following aids to genealogical research for South Africa: a historical map, a list of genealogical organizations, a list of the national libraries, and a bibliography.

The information contained in this paper is subject to revision as further research warrants.

Historical Background

As early as 1652, the Dutch East India Company founded a colony at Cape Town for the purpose of providing fresh provisions and a resting place for the company's ships enroute to and from India. By 1657 the company realized that to encourage farmers to stay they would have to grant them title to the company's land. These farmers, or free burghers, gradually increased their holdings as each generation moved further from Cape Colony to establish new and larger farms. The sparse native population offered little resistance to new settlers.

From the beginnings in 1652 and continuing for two centuries, excellent records were kept at Cape Town, which was the center for both the government and the Dutch Reformed Church. As Cornelis Pama explained:

"This meant that, no matter how far the burghers moved into the interior, they always had to undertake the long journey to Cape Town if they wanted to marry, baptize their children, obtain a grant of land, make their will, or conduct any other kind of lawful business. This was not without consequences for later genealogical research, because it meant that all records of importance to genealogy from the very foundation of the colony in 1652, were kept in one place."*

In 1688 some six hundred French Huguenots arrived to help settle the colony, and within one generation they were assimilated into the Dutch population. The Dutch Reformed Church was the official church of the East India Company and the only religion until 1780 when the German immigrants became numerous enough to establish the first Lutheran Church at Cape Town.

In 1795 the French armies invaded and possessed the Netherlands. The Dutch King, William V of Orange, fled to England; and the British, in his behalf, took control of the Cape Colony from 1795-1802. However, from 1803 to 1806 the French influenced Batavian Republic established in the Netherlands once more controlled the Cape Colony. The British regained control in 1806, and from this time a steady stream of British immigrants began to bolster the sparse population. Between 1806 and 1875 approximately 1,100 British settlers arrived annually. For the period 1904-1946, about two thousand a year came.

The most famous British immigration was that of the 1820 settlers who came to the Albany area to settle the land between the Sunday and the Fish rivers. They suffered two successive wheat failures and were constantly exposed to marauding bands of Bantu natives. Most of them abandoned their farms and settled in the cities throughout South Africa.

Today, approximately 60 percent of the white population speaks Afrikaans, which is derived from the Dutch and Low-German languages. Afrikaans and English are the official languages of the country.

The field-cornetcies (a magistrate similar to a justice of the peace) of Zwarte Ruggens, Bruintjes, Hoogte, Zuurveld, Bushman's River, and Zwartkops River were cut off from Graaff-Reinet and formed into the District of Uitenhage. The field-cornetcies of Winterhoek were taken from Graaff-Reinet and Zitzikama; Kromme River and Baviaans' Kloof were taken from Swellendam and added to Uitenhage on October 4, 1804. The subdistrict of Beaufort was created from portions of Graaff-Reinet, Tulbagh, and a tract of land beyond the Zak River on November 27, 1818. The District of Albany was created on October 13, 1821, from the portion of Uitenhage east of Bushman's River and a tract of land between the Fish and Keiskama Rivers.
