¹Sirsi is the corporate name of the producer of the library's online catalog and database system, Unicorn®.

²All Media Center materials were transferred to Music/Dance in 2020 and such transactions are included in SIRSI counts above.

³As of 2018, all transactions recorded through the library's check-out system.

⁴The HBLL made the transition from the Dewey Decimal Call Numbers to the Library of Congress (LC) Call Numbers several years ago. The one area where there is an exception was in the Juvenile Collection currently located on the 4th floor in the southwest wing. The Dewey numbers here primarily reflect circulation of that collection.

⁵Miscellaneous includes items that are circulated but did not match the LC or Dewey Call Number ranges as assigned within the Sirsi report (e.g., curriculum, Mid-East/Icelandic/Welsh, Sampler, etc.).

⁶A change in the way circulation is tracked by user profile affected the final report in 2012, resulting in a large increase in Others while seeing dramatic decreases in all the other profiles.

⁷Others are check-outs that were missing a user profile in Sirsi; they are still counted in overall circulation statistics. The way in which some patrons were classed by circulation resulted in significant changes in circulation patterns for 2013 with past totals being adjusted to match this new criteria.

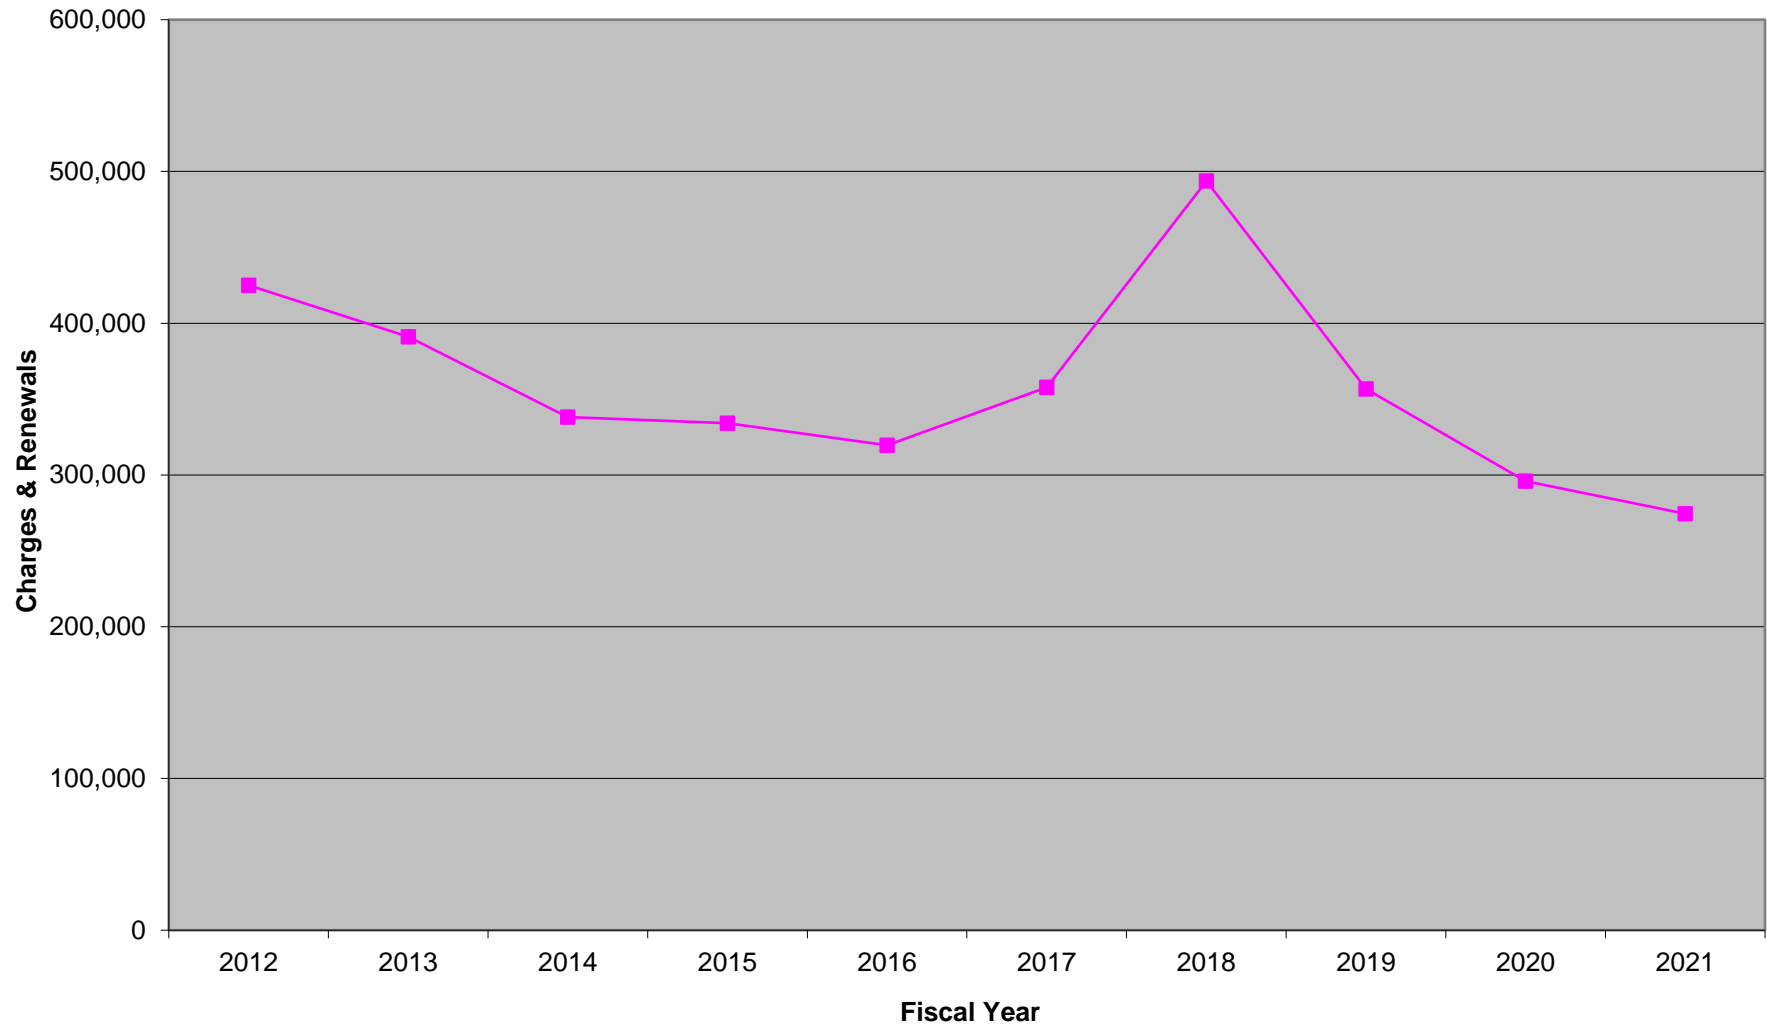

⁸The large increase in circulation for the Science, Medicine & Nursing, and Agriculture is due to the relocating of those materials and weeding of the same to accommodate construction in the library in those areas (see also Library Use under User profile breakdown). The figures for 2019 were more in line with what is normally seen for these collections.

⁹Effective 2019, with the reclassification of media to LC call numbers in the Media Center, all items are included in the Call Number ranges and User profile breakdown, where in the past they were not.
